FOREWORD

Our endeavor in this volume is to present a brief record of life at Lovington High School and to preserve for the future an account of our school mates and their activities. To Mr. Delk and Miss Roberts who have contributed in so large a measure to our undertaking we wish to express our grateful appreciation.

DEDICATION

Throughout the ages the heart of man has responded to the clarion call of freedom's cause. As never before the destiny of the world for centuries to come hangs in the balance. At last the issue is clear: Shall man be free, or shall he become a mere slave of the state? Shall democracy survive, or shall it perish from the earth?

To the alumni of Lovington High School who are offering their lives in defense of the free spirit of man, we dedicate this, the eighth volume of The Cycle.

MARIA WHITEHEAD
"Birdie"

Maria is the most dignified girl of the Seniors. She is ever willing to take over a duty and perform it to the best of her ability.

CLASS WILL

We the Senior Class of 1943, being of sound mind, do hereby, make our last will and testament.

First, we wish to express our appreciation to the faculty for their sincere guidance in all respects, and secondly, we wish to bestow upon the Juniors our most distinctive personalities.

Elizabeth Mawyer wills her mirror, comb, and lipstick to Florence Watts, Sarah Crist, and Idell Stevens.

Princess Spencer wills her quiet and lovable ways to Mary McKenzie and Louise O'Brien.

Louise Mawyer leaves Patty Rowan the right to knit in Miss Walker's study hall.

Anne Trice leaves Forest Ann Burford the pleasure of driving everybody crazy with her singing.

Margie Bryant and Alice Bolton leave their witty sayings to Frances Wood, Lucille Bryant, and Dicky Moon.

Virginia Wright leaves Norma Lee Johnson and Maxine Jackson the privilege of writing letters in Latin Class.

Mary Giles leaves her noisy but happy ways to Clara Fitzgerald and Agnes Jane Sheffield.

Dorothy Lee Showalter wills her dignified manner to Arlene Bryant and Margaret Fitzgerald.

Thelma Giles leaves her carefree ways to Mildred Thacker and Lila Wills.

Edith Stilwell and Doris Via leave their place in the back hall to Helen Via and Josephine Lincoln.

Thelma Showalter and Nannie Mae Clarkson will their lady-like ways to Pauline Harris, Russell Frances Rice, and Bessie Ritenour.

Caroline McAlexander leaves her sweet disposition to Christine Harris and Elsie Banton.

Merle Dell Wright wills her quiet business-like ways to Elizabeth Showalter and Marie Snead.

Audrey Shelton leaves her love for boys to Allene Bradley and Katherine Ann Short.

Pettis Coleman and Thelma Oakley leave their flirting ways to Frances Robertson and Dorothy Carter.

Frances Bridgwater wills her neat appearance to Mary Lee Fortune and Virginia Purvis.

Rebecca Saunders wills her ability to draw to Alice Ann Bradley.

Maria Whitehead and Edgar Turner leave their love of Music to Ruby Ann Horsely and John Roberts.

Bernice Powell leaves her ability to make good grades in her classes to Lucy Jones and Lucille Simpson.

Mildred Ogden and Helen Gordon leave their ability to make friends to Alice Coleman and Virginia Harris.

Helen Wilson leaves her pleasant personality to Christine Smith.

Russell Lee Evans leaves Maxine Bryant and Hugh Turner the privilege of staying love sick all the year.

Marion Lincoln and William Albert Stevens leave their athletic ability to Paul Shelton and Wilton Spencer.

Thomas Wood and Arthur Wilson leave Fred West and James Duncan their privilege to cough in Civics Class.

Cliff Wood leaves Palmer Tunstall his studious abilities to make good marks in class.

Rex Forbes wills Robert Fortune his "way" with girls.

Billy Walker and Billy Somerville will their quiet ways to William Terry and Martin Turner.

James Hughes wills Margery Dunning his seat on Turner's bus.

Aubrey Spencer leaves Calvin Jennings his Commercial abilities.

Waller Crist and David Hughes leave their neat appearance to Fred Wood.

Steve Jones leaves his mischievous ways and curiosity to J. T. Matthews.

SENIOR CLASS PROPHECY

I haven't had the craziest dream--no, it lies beyond dreaming--but a vision so realistic that something convinces me that the destiny of my classmates must be as I predict.

Whom should I see but Mary and Thelma Giles, experts on the latest South American dance steps, at their swanky night club catering to Lovington's elite society, and little Alice Bolton crooning a blues song? In competition with the Giles sisters, Waller Crist was running Shantytown.---Then I had a glimpse of Cliff Wood. He was giving a new tractor a try-out for fear that he would not be satisfied with its maneuverability (he was still air-minded).---Pettis Coleman had become a Red Cross nurse as a favor to Uncle Sam. All of her patients fell for her red hair.---Laugh! I thought I would never stop, when I heard Thelma Oakley matching her witty sayings with Bob Hope over his program. Believe it or not, she was holding her own.---Edgar Turner was pitcher for the Cardinals. He was very good judging from the applause that rose from the grandstand, and from the smiles of his manager, Arthur Wilson.---Audrey Shelton was traveling with a circus. not as an actress but as manager. She was really making dough from her stuffed three-headed calf.---I was astonished at the change in Thelma Showalter. She had taken a liking to football and was yelling for all she was worth for a certain player to make a touchdown.

Caroline MacAlexander was happily married and living in Washington where she had worked as a stenographer before settling down.---Virginia Wright was teaching shorthand at Virginia Commercial College at Lynchburg.---Mildred Ogden was in the Metropolitan Opera House singing "I Dreamed I Dwelt in Marble Halls". Those in the balcony were held spellbound as her voice rang out.---Rebecca Saunders was sitting on a high chair with her hair tousled and her eyes were peeping through a microscope. I heard her yell, "I will revolutionize the world with my new discovery".

Princess Spencer was in Paris teaching some squeaky Frenchmen the English language.---James Hughes was an engineer on the Southern Railway, sending the Streamliner on its course. He had to come over to the Southern as the C & O didn't have time to fool with him.---Thomas Wood was a designer of model airplanes. He had made many improvements and helpful suggestions to the American Air Lines.---I saw Elizabeth Mawyer in New York typing for the mayor. When she had extra time, she was always typing her own love letters.

"David Hughes!" That's all I could hear when I got on the bus at Lynchburg. Looking at the driver, I saw the David Hughes. Only now he had lost his romantic instincts and had become a woman-hater.---Edith Stilwell was giving a lecture to her pupils and telling how she behaved when she was a pupil herself.---Billy Somerville was a blueprint engineer. He knew his work well, and when anything went wrong, never hesitated to say so.---Rex Forbes had come into a large sum of money. He was known as the play-boy of Shipman. As usual, every girl was gaa gaa about him.---Nanie Clarkson as a "society dame" giving elaborate parties. Among the celebrities who were present at one of them were Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Madame Chiang Kai Shek, Gloria Vanderbilt, and Billy Somerville.---Billy Walker was the pilot of one of Uncle Sam's house on wheels. He gave the passengers the thrill of their lives with his loops and barrel rolls.---I saw Dorothy Lee Showalter as being contented with nothing less than Mrs. Ollie Crank, but first giving all of her devotees heartbreak.---Maria Whitehead was Secretary of State. Margie Bryant was what I suppose you would call Maria's right hand lady; she controlled all of her business for her. Aubrey Spencer had accepted the position as secretary to Maria. He was severely reprimanded one day for "trifling with Margie's affections".---Russell Lee Evans and Frances Bridgwater were happy as man and wife. They were as lovesick as ever.---Helen Wilson was creating quite a crowd around her beauty salon. Helen Gordon, a beauty specialist, was there from Lynchburg showing her the latest styles.---William Albert Stevens was President of the REA in Lovingston. He was fussing true-boss-style at his secretary, Doris Via, who powdered her nose too much.---Bernice Powell was a well-known policewoman. She got the drop on all violators of the law when they saw how she handled a gun.

Miss Roberts had left L. H. S. to become the wife of a well-known gentleman. She found domestic life much better than trying to teach "dopey" kids. She pitied Louise Mawyer; Louise was now Senior teacher and was really having trouble getting her pupils to act like dignified persons. Anne Trice, of course to be near Louise, was Lovingston High's vocal instructor. She had little difficulty reaching the high C's.---Marion Lincoln was living on his farm at the "Fortune Place". He had so much stock that he had to take inventory every month or so.

Steve Jones was Lovingston High's new principal. He had accepted the job only on the condition that he could spank all of the bad kids. Mr. Delk was in the air--liquid air! He had discovered what would keep it from getting too cold.

Whether or not it is intended for the Seniors of '43 to follow the paths I state, is for Fate to handle. I wish them all the best of luck and happy landings!

JOKES

Steve: "I wish I had a nickel for every girl I've kissed."

Cliff: "What would you do? Buy yourself a package of gum?"

Thelma Oakley: (getting ready to have her shoes half soled) "What do you repair these shoes with?"

Cobbler: "Hide."

Thelma: "Why should I hide?"

Cobbler: "Hide, hide, the cow's outside."

Thelma: "Let her come in. I'm not afraid."

Waller: "I want a girl that cooks, sews, keeps house, and doesn't smoke or pet."

Thomas: "Why don't you go down to the graveyard and dig one up?"

"My heart is with the ocean", cried the poet. "You've gone me one better", said the sea sick friend as he took a fireman grasp on the rail.

The actor cried, "Bread, bread", and the curtain came down with a roll.

Billy Walker: "Can you stand on your head?"

Aubrey: "Nope, it's too high."

Papa loved Mama
Mama loved men;
Mama's in the graveyard
Papa's in the Pen.

Mary Giles: "Getting cold, isn't it?"

Mr. Atto: "Winter draws on."

Mary: "Sir?"

"Let's stick this guy for the drinks", said one mosquito to another.

Mr. Delk: "What is your idea of civilization?"

David Hughes: "It's a good idea. Somebody ought to start it."

Early to bed and early to rise,
Your gal goes out with other guys.

She: "Am I the first girl you ever kissed?"

He: "Come to think of it you do look a little familiar."

Helen W: "I wonder who this telegram is from?"

Billy Somerville: "Western Union, I recognize the handwriting."

Russell Lee: "Say you love me!! Say it! Say it! Say it!"

Frances Bridgwater: "You love me."
